Old Business

1. Update on Phase 1 sign-ups, GIS training for sign-ups, yard signs, new web site input- Roy reported that he has met with many of the people in the Church Hollow area and many of them have signed up for taps. Roy presented an idea of considering the Marvel townsite for phase 1. We discussed this option and considered the pros and cons of what this would do to the second phase. Jeff believes we have a viable project without going that far down into what has been defined as the second phase. Jeff recommended considering Church Hollow but not Marvel at this time. We are to update the parcels with taps, and then B&W will run a quick analysis to determine what the system may look like. Frank asked Jeff if this additional analysis would cost more money, Jeff's response was they will do their best to keep their cost low and work with us on it.

Roy asked everyone to get to the G drive and look over the letter to commitment holders concerning refunds.

Jeff gave a list of three considerations that they will look at for in the preliminary design; user signups, environmental clearance, and easements.

Roy would like to take another look at properties next to clusters and try to contact those people.

We also discussed those that may want to pay after the June 30th deadline. Those people will not realize the discount and pay a higher tap fee. Perhaps $10,000. This will be considered in the refund letters to commitment holders.

2. Phase 0 update/progress report, including non-BOR easements, BOR license agreement status-Roy reported that the license agreement has expired, Celene thought that it may be the payment agreement has expired but she didn't think it was the license agreement. Jeff reported that B&W has submitted the final client review set of design drawings. Jeff followed up on the submittal and spoke with Tyler Artichoker of BOR to confirm they have the drawings. Jeff asked if there were any other changes to the design; Jeff stated that there were minor changes, one is the style of meter vault to eliminate confined space entry training and permit requirements.

Jeff stated that they are ready to send out the design drawings. There is a 30 day design review. Celene asked if the letter with attachments had been sent? Jeff just sent the letter without the attachments so he will send the attachments out again tomorrow.

3. Revolving Fund Eligibility list submission and Roundtable application- The roundtable meeting is July 8th so it is too late to turn in the application this go round. We may need to do it next quarter. Roy will update the RF eligibility survey and send it in by the end of the month. We did not go into executive session to discuss this agenda topic.

4. Update of Policy 13-2 regarding refunds/transfers of commitment deposits.
